

Week 3 Matchup Recap

#2 Ass Thanos (2-1)

147.78 - 101.46

#3 No This is Patrick (3-0)

Definitely the matchup of the week as these two fight to stay undefeated. Tyreek's 26.2 pts gives Roush an early advantage but Amari Cooper keeps Tom in the competition in the early window of games. The Arizona and Dallas game could be the difference maker for this matchup as everyone expected the Cowboys were expected to clean house. The Cardinals made a huge upset with James Conner netting Chris 18.6pts and the Dallas D/ST gets -2.0 pts for Tom. Still, after these afternoon games, the matchup is only 8% in favor of Chris as we will have to wait until Monday night to see who claims this win. It was a long shot for Chris as the Joe Burrow/Tee Higgins stack didn't get going as he would have wanted, giving Tom a strong 3-0 start for the season.

#1 Jefferson Starship (2-1)

#10 Silence of the Lambs (1-2)

Another high scoring matchup as after a disrespectful ranking of #10, Rayan is out for blood. Rayan leads by 20 points projected thanks to a combined 66 pt performance from Keenan Allen and the buffalo defense. Myles just needed the vikings to do anything useful as they had multiple tries in the redzone to end the game to keep Myles in the matchup. Things didn't change much in the afternoon block as Rayan still held a strong lead. Joe Mixon would need to outscore Jakobi Meyers and Brett Maher by 10+ points for Myles to comeback and win this matchup. Unfortunately, this Bengals offense is still struggling to start the season as Joe Mixon doesn't come close to keeping Myle's undefeated start. Bahri gets his first win of the day off of Keenan Allen's 36.46 pt game - who we can expect to continue performing after Mike Williams' season ending injury.

#6 Jordan Hate (2-1)

#9 No Hamstrings, Many Problems (1-2)

Still a competitive matchup after the first window of games. Zack Moss looks like the real deal and could end up as a RB1 for the year with 21.5 points and high # of touches. The first 3 quarters looked rough for DJ Moore but he salvaged a statline for Jordan to gain a small lead heading into the night games. It'll be a great MNF as Jordan will cheer for the Baker Mayfield/Mike Evans stack and Will has the Matt Stafford/Tyler Higbee/Puka Nacua stack. SNF gave us a classic mid-off between these two teams each carrying 4 players out for injury. Josh Jacobs closes the gap for Will after dominating Najee Harris' performance with a MEGA 9.5 pts. The MNF games were a nail biter but in the end, it came down to a Baker/Evans TD that secured the win for Jordan. Stafford made a nice pass to Puka that only needed 2 more yards in the air for the touchdown which would have given Will the win this week.

#4 The Great Bigsby (2-1)

#7 Chase the Money (1-2)

A low scoring early afternoon matchup between the two as both sides only had 3 or 4 players playing. Cal fell behind early as the Jags defense couldn't hold Gardner Minshrew down as expected. The afternoon window is exciting for all the Swifties in the league as Thinh hopes to see Travis Kelce start dominating from the TE spot. Travis Kelce (Taylor's Version) was a classic performance as he gets 16.4 pts for Thinh. The real nail in the coffin had to be Kenneth Walker with 29.1 points as Cal's Hollywood Brown couldn't do enough to keep this matchup competitive. Still though, Cal has Jalen Hurts and Ja'Marr Chase still to play, and these two could blow up any week for 30+ points. It was a good get-right week for Ja'Marr Chase but it wasn't enough to comeback for the win this week. Cal also gets eliminated in the Survivor challenge, barely losing to Jeremiah by less than 1 point, a major heartbreaker.

#11 Full Chubb (2-1)

#5 Too Many Cooks in the Kitchen (1-2)

Absolutely huge week for Nikhil as his 133rd draft pick Raheem Mostert scores 41.7 pts for him. The highest scoring player (that realistically would have been started, talking to you Achane) of the early games. Jeremiah will need a similarly amazing performance from one of his afternoon players to win this week. Unfortunately, an amazing performance was not found for Jeremiah and Nikhil will claim this week with a strong performance from his RBs. This is the first matchup that is finalized as neither team has SNF or MNF players.

#12 Curious George (0-3)

#8 Just Joshin (1-2)

The projections already had Jack losing by 12 points but it still feels worse when Max has a great performance from all his key players extending the projections to 40 points. Sam LaPorta ended with a top fantasy score for TEs with 18.4 points including a long touchdown. Max will finish his week in the afternoon games while Jack will wait until SNF and MNF for his remaining 5 players to play. An impressive performance from Max's remaining players, especially Jason Meyers scoring 18pts with 5 FGs and 2 XPs. ESPN only projects Jack a 10% chance of coming back to win this matchup. He will need 100 points from his remaining five players. It was a tall task as Max got a dominating win to claim his first victory of the season. He looks forward to building on this week-leading performance and Jack will have to figure out some answers for his RB corps.
